Maury Ornest, the brother of Didi Hirsch Board member Laura Ornest, was a minor league baseball player and prolific painter who struggled with paranoia and delusions before he died of heart disease last summer at age 58. After his death his family discovered secret storage units containing over 1,000 paintings and hundreds of sketchbooks and journals that illuminate his experience of mental illness. The Ornest family donated 10 of his paintings to our Erasing the Stigma Awards. All sales benefit Didi Hirsch Mental Health Services.

"I figure if any of my art is that good, then at least one honest person will believe in it. That would make me feel good. Hopefully before I die, whenever the hell that is. If it's after my life, I guess I wouldn't know anyway, except that I honestly believe some of my art is that good. There's one person."
